[London]: E. and R. Nutt, and R. Gosling, 1732. [viii], 264, [16] pp. Reprinted 2002 by The Lawbook Exchange, Ltd. LCCN 2002041292. Hardcover. Reprint of the first edition of The Ladys Law which examines the doctrines of English Common Law relating to a feme covert or a woman whose legal status was covered by a male head of their household, either a father or husband. A feme covert was therefore a woman not yet married or already married, but not widowed. (The legal status of a widow was a different matter entirely.) Written from a perspective sympathetic to women, it deals with precedents of conveyances not covered in The Law of Baron and Femme, and as such can be seen as a companion volume. The work concludes with an account of Robert Hydes argument in the case of Manby v. Scott in the Exchequer Chamber in 1663 in which he argued that a husband who is separated from his wife is not liable to a vendor for goods the wife purchased from the vendor. Commenting on the case in his diary, Samuel Pepys referred to Hydes judgment as most amusing. Diary of Samuel Pepys, January 28, 1663. Robert Hyde [1595-1665] was a Chief Justice of the Kings Bench from 1663-1665, having gained appointment through the influence of his cousin, Edward Hyde, first Earl of Clarendon. With an index. Dictionary of National Biography X:400-401. Marvin, Legal Bibliography (1847) 443, citing 1737 2nd ed. Catalogue of the Library of the Law School of Harvard University (1909) II:764.
