

Factory Work: Warhol, Wyeth and Basquiat

Factory Work examines Andy Warhols (1928-1987) role as a mentor for two younger artists from opposite corners of the art world. Jamie Wyeth (b. 1946) and Jean-Michel Basquiat (1960-1988) were young, independent artists with their own substantial reputations when Andy Warhol invited each of them to paint in his Factory on 860 Broadway, New York City. In 1976, Andy Warhol and Jamie Wyeth painted each others portraits. They jointly attended openings from 1976 to 1980; the exhibitions were known informally as The Patriarch of Pop Paints the Prince of Realism, and Warhol visited Wyeths farm in Pennsylvania. Basquiat rented a studio on Great Jones Street from Warhol beginning in August 1983, and collaborated with Warhol (first as part of a trio including Francesco Clemente) later the same year and in 1984 began joint projects with Warhol alone and exhibited in 1985. Warhol influenced these younger artists, and they enabled him to stay connected to new audiences of an evolving art world. At the same time, Warhols paintings demonstrably changed due to his contact with Wyeth and Basquiat.
