

Invisible London

Based in London, nvisible Museum is the product of twelve years worth of acquisitions by a collector who prefers to remain anonymous. Works are often seminal pieces by young artists early in their careers. Uniquely, the contents of collection are dispersed and nomadic, lent to friends and artists in the collection, and from time to time loaned to art institutions in thematic exhibitions, including the Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, San Francisco; Migros Museum, Zurich; Kiasma Museo, Helsinki; and Sir John Soanes Museum, London in 2002. Invisible London is a photographic journey from Heathrow to Brick Lane, taking in some of the citys public places and moving inside the flats, houses and studios where the collection of nvisible Museum is located -- in subtle and compelling opposition to the gigantism and monumentalism of contemporary art collecting.
