

73° North: The Battle of the Barents Sea (Non-Fiction)

This brilliant action fought by the Royal Navy to protect an Allied convoy to Russia at the end of the year [1942] led directly to a crisis in the enemys naval policy and ended the dream of another German High Seas Fleet. Winston Churchill. Dudley Popes brilliant and authoritative account and analysis of this action makes compelling reading from both a historical perspective and the exciting way he relates the story. Four British Destroyers fought off the battleship Lutzow, heavy cruiser Admiral Hipper, plus six destroyers, so as to protect a convoy bound for Russia in the hostile northern waters and as a result not a single merchant ship was lost. Pope manages to show how power and iron discipline is not always a match for ingenuity, initiative, and courage. If Dudley pope was not already established as a leading Naval historian, this volume would do it.
