

Medical Evacuation

Army Techniques Publication 4-02.2 remains generally consistent with FM 4-02.2, Change 1, on key topics while adopting updated terminology and concepts as necessary. The Army Health System (AHS) is a complex system of interrelated and interdependent systems which provides a continuum of medical treatment from the POI or wounding through successive roles of medical care to definitive, rehabilitative, and convalescent care in the CONUS, as required. Medical evacuation is the system which provides the vital linkage between the roles of care necessary to sustain the patient during transport. This is accomplished by providing en route medical care and emergency medical intervention, if required, and to enhance the individuals prognosis and to reduce long-term disability. Army Techniques Publication 4-02.2 contains seven chapters and two appendixes. Chapter 1 provides a brief overview of AHS and how the medical function of medical evacuation relates to the principles of AHS. It discusses the purpose, primary task, and attributes of the Army medical evacuation system. It also defines the differences between medical evacuation and casualty evacuation. Chapter 2 discusses the factors that establish the evacuation policy and the impact of the evacuation policy on AHS support. Chapter 3 describes the mission, function and capabilities of medical evacuation units and elements as specified in the units table of organization and equipment. It also discusses the mission command headquarters to which they are assigned. Chapter 4 provides insight and considerations into developing the operational and tactical medical evacuation plan that supports the combatant commanders (CCDRs) mission. This chapter also provides descriptions of medical evacuation tools that are essential to the medical evacuation plan. Chapter 5 discusses the employment of medical evacuation resources and the coordination and synchronization required to effectively execute medical evacuation operations. This includes the medical evacuation request process, consideration for medical evacuation missions, and support planning considerations. Chapter 6 addresses medical evacuation in specific environments or under special circumstances. Chapter 7 describes the medical regulation system designed to ensure the efficient and safe movement of regulated patients to the appropriate MTF by the most effective means. It also discusses the multi-Service responsibility and assets used to conduct this mission. Appendix A provides a summary of the Geneva Conventions and medical evacuation. Appendix B provides an example of a medical evacuation plan as part of an operations order.
