

In Memory of My Feelings: Frank OHara and American Art

Not only was Frank OHara (1926-1966) one of the most important American poets of his generation, he was also intimately involved with the art world of the 1950s and 1960s, a time when New York had become the cultural capital of the world. As an associate curator at the Museum of Modern Art, OHara organized a series of important exhibitions, notably of the work of Franz Kline and of Robert Motherwell. In Memory of My Feelings: Frank OHara and American Art explores this key period in modern art by presenting artists who were associated with OHara and whose seminal works are reflected in his poetry. Featuring over 80 works by twenty-three artists, the book focuses on works closely tied to specific poems by Frank OHara, notably Jasper Johnss In Memory of My Feelings Frank OHara and Grace Hartigans Oranges. Included are direct collaborations between OHara and various artists such as Joe Brainard, Norman Bluhm, and Larry Rivers, as well as portraits of the poet by Elaine de Kooning and Alex Katz. Franz Kline, Alice Neel, and Joan Mitchell are some of the other artists highlighted. The book is a timely re-examination of the relationship between art and poetry at this crucial moment in American art. It also offers new insights into the charismatic figure of Frank OHara and his world. The exhibition, In Memory of My Feelings: Frank OHara and American Art, will be at The Museum of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles, from July 11 to November 14, 1999; at The Wexner Center for the Arts, Columbus, Ohio, January 28 to April 16, 2000; and the Parrish Art Museum in Southampton, New York, in May, 2000.
