

New Yorker Visits The Guggenheim, The

From mid-century masters Charles Addams and Saul Steinberg, through contemporary cartoonists Art Spiegelman and Roz Chast, New Yorker artists have depicted The Guggenheim with wit and insight. This book brings together five decades worth of cartoons and cover illustrations that feature the iconic museum, along with period photographs that reveal the artists' inspirations. According to Robert Mankoff, The cartoonists of The New Yorker brilliantly and hilariously illuminate both the reality of New York and the city of our imaginations.
