

Wife for an Afternoon (All The Presidents Beds Book 2)

Alice Johnson has made it back to 1796, and she's looking for a piece of George Washington. Upon her arrival, she meets John Cooper, a rugged gentleman who sweeps her off her feet and into a horse cart. This is the second volume in the hilarious erotica series, All The Presidents Beds. The stories are a humorous take on erotica, mixed with a bit of historical fiction, seasoned with a dash of sci-fi. Warning: Explicit Content. Wife for an Afternoon is an erotica story of 7000 words that is the second in the series All The Presidents Beds. It features BDSM, oral work, and a quick wit. From the book: You must pray for rain every time you hear Dapple whinny, since I'm the only guest you ever seem to have at this godforsaken inn, John smiled. Of course, a room for my wife and me. I sent a kick in his direction, but I missed the mark, and my shin connected squarely with the support column. Shhhhhhhhhhhhhii..urely there must be other guests, my dear, I winced. A fine establishment such as this. Horatio looked startled, concerned at my obvious pain, but his propriety eventually forced him to pretend as though I weren't writhing in my seat. Ha ha, John is always saying things like that, he said. We are at capacity, if you must know. The rest of the guests are currently working on the Capitol dome. I'm sure they'll be back soon, given that the mortar is of no use in this rain. Horatio took our dishes, handed John a key, then went to stoke the fire in the hearth. It was probably 80 degrees in the dining room already, but the darkness that the storm had cast had made the room dangerously dim. So we are just supposed to go to bed as husband and wife? What kind of woman do you take me for? I asked. There will be nothing untoward, my dear. I will sneak out and sleep with Dapple in the stables to allow you to keep your sense of propriety, OK? he said. It seemed that any conversation we had made me feel uncomfortable. Perhaps it had something to do with the effects of time travel on my synapses. Perhaps I was tired from the journey. Perhaps I just wanted him to rip of my clothes and give me what Alessandro couldnt. Whatever it was, it unsettled me.
